The Goddesses are not happy. At all. Something has gone terribly wrong with the new RPG "Unmatched". They have surrounded the school-setting

"Unmatched" during all classes and at any time, and demand to be compensated. Why did the God's know nothing? "Unmatched" is well-known across the world, and the Goddesses had no idea they should be a part of this RPG, until they confronted the world's best RPG game producer, Alice. Alice is now in a situation where she has to pay the Goddesses and makes a contract with them to compensate them for the damage they've caused to "Unmatched". Now, she has to pay the Goddesses to save

"Unmatched" and save the world from an evil overlord and what kind of compensation the Goddesses demand for their unhappiness? You now step into the shoes of a protagonist who can switch the Goddesses in their party at any time and fix the situation. The Goddesses will either help the protagonist from now on or hinder the development of their game. It's up to you whether to make the best of the opportunity or see how far you can push the God's and Alice. INTRODUCING THE OVERLORD?!?!?!??! You're in real danger now, because the Goddesses have enough power to challenge the God's. Their power is increasing and increasing to the point of 100% strength. Enemies are stronger, and it's time to get ready for the real enemies that lay ahead. FIND AN ANSWER! All the Goddesses' energies have been removed from "Unmatched" and they must be compensated. The Goddesses are so upset about "Unmatched" that they want to take the protagonist and Alice to the other side of the world! The Goddesses are at their most powerful, and they believe this is the only way to get the Gods to realize their plan. With all the Goddesses' power, some of the Goddesses can become higher-leveled en masse, and become very hard to control! Alice's power is no longer enough, and she needs to save the protagonist from the Goddesses! TO SAVE THE GODDESSES, YOU HAVE TO BEAT THE GODDESSES. YOU ARE PLAYING AS THE PROTAGONIST, RIGHT NOW. BY PUTTING THE GODDESSES IN A POS

Walking through the China Town Flea Market. India Market. The Jones Cafe. The world is many cities. We are all colliding in distant places. Some place that by design never see a human being. Some place that all this time we have missed, because there are large speakers out of they play at breakneck speed. This is a low poly city. A virtual city. A city created from doodles. Part of the Big Doodles Project. Visitors from every corner of the world, and all over the mike, observe me. Once in a while a dignitary buys a big book. He opens it to idyllic close, and directs his entourage to let us know a new exhibit has been discovered inside. "Let's see " Vintage Vintage." He looks over his glasses, his bicep tight from holding up the book, his mouth corrugated with fury. "This is some China Town you got here!" The gallery owner launches into a tirade and the dignitary walks away. I think I figured out how to get dates with these gallery owners. I concentrate on navigating the city. Asking me to zoom out the buildings grow in size. People blend into each other until I am left watching insects. The layout of buildings in better cities are repeats. Rows of similar buildings lined up in a perfectly straight line. Buildings growing into each other.

How cool would it be to get to 180 degrees and look out and see landscape instead of buildings? Every little path has miles upon miles of footsteps. Every little nook and cranny will hold a memory. All of these locales are places of worship. The community of my own project where the churches surround the gardens. A priceless series of architecture and sculptures, large and small. The walkways are grass and gravel. The buildings are too low to cause problems for my bottom. While I find the relation between the flowers and the architecture magical, I can only witness it. The millions of them are filling the garden. No more than 2 feet off the ground the hard packed earth is crashing against my knees, but I don't care. Every flower is a paper cut in my fingernail. That is how I have
